Enter The Word Collector Classroom Contest

Just like Jerome in The Word Collector, children can use thousands of "feeling words" to help express their emotions, dreams, and ideas. At the end of the story, Jerome has no words to express how happy giving away his words makes him. Can your students come up with their own feeling words?

How to Enter:

Read The Word Collector by Peter H. Reynolds together as a class. Discuss what "feeling words" are, then have each student pick a favorite word and illustrate it on an 8 ½" x 11" sheet of paper. Collect your class's illustrations and send them all in one envelope as a single classroom entry,

ONE Grand-Prize Winner Will Receive:

A reading corner makeover! Transform a section of your classroom into an official Word Collector Class Corner—including bookshelves, a listening library, signed books, and an original work of art by Peter H. Reynolds!

TEN Runners-Up Will Win:

A signed Peter H. Reynolds book collection. The winning entries will also be featured here on the Scholastic Book Clubs contest page and on social media.

Entries Must Be Received by February 15, 2019

Send To:

The Word Collector Classroom Contest, PO Box 714, New York, NY 10013-0714

Each student illustration must include grade; teacher name; and school name, address, and phone number.

Scholastic Book Clubs