

Dear Present-Day Genesis,

I am the last survivor on Earth. I command you to follow these instructions wisely or else our planet's future is in danger. My purpose for writing to you is to inform you about Earth's post-apocalyptic state. We need to prevent our world from coming to this point because our humanity will die out if we do not preserve the resources we have and protect our environment. Global warming, resource scarcity, and economic troubles are not only issues in your present time, but issues that will only grow greater throughout the rest of time if you do not act soon. I need your help if you choose to accept this mission.

First of all, you need to do whatever it takes to prevent the ozone layer from breaking apart. The polluted clouds as dark as the night will come to a great many one day if you do not take action. Heed my words, spread this important information with as many people as you can. If the ozone layer breaks apart, it will only make every other challenge that much more difficult. Humanity will be subject to impure air and everyone will need gas masks to survive.

Equally as important, the amount of natural and man-made resources will decrease, leaving us with minimal necessities to survive and thrive. The greed of those who will come to rule and greed of people in our society will rise to a mountain which towers over everyone with a swallowing shadow. The wants of people throughout the nations will grow bigger because they can not be satisfied with that they do have. The reign of democracies will rise and fall, when rulers are no longer able to sustain enough for all of the people that remain.

Except, what will remain are those who still have hope. Those like you and I, because we are one. Present-day Genesis, I am the last survivor but I am also you from the future. My motive for using a false identity throughout this letter is that I was afraid if I wrote from our point of view, you would be unsure, scared, and questionable about my mission for you. The future lies in your hands and I entrust you with these keys to unlock brighter days for our next generation of warriors who will fight for our Earth.

Sincerely,

The Last Survivor

Genesis
